Report Explanation

The number in bold is the class number, with each class having a set of titles.

The first column of numbers is the number of verses. the second column of numbers is the number of entries for that title. An entry can be one scripture or a range of scriptures. Therefore there will always be more verses than entries.

At the bottom, there is a "Unique" number, which represents the unique number of verses for that group. to the right of that, is the total number of verses, and to the right of that is the differences. The more overlapping of topics, the bigger this differences is e.g. class number 9 has 1,469 verses of which 579 are unique leaving a difference of 890 indicating that there is a lot of overlapping, and therefore is a good reason to put these topics in one class.

The overlapping factor isn't the only reason to group things in the classes. You would also do it because it's (hopefully) logically related.
